WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Dec. 8 /PRNewswire/ -- Joseph F. Finn, Jr., C.P.A. Managing Partner of Finn, Warnke & Gayton announced today that the firm is offering a sales platform for biotechnology companies to sell their intellectual property. According to industry sources, many of these enterprises have intellectual property sitting dormant in various stages of development due to funding, scientific or regulatory issues.

Finn noted that the firm's experience in selling the intellectual property of ActivBiotics, Spherics, Prospect Therapeutics, Alpha Beta Technologies and Epix Pharmaceuticals has given it the opportunity to develop a database of active buyers and create a legal platform to conduct sales. It has also created a steady flow of inquiries from biotech firms and individuals regarding the firm's future offerings of intellectual property.
